PICASSO'S

Pablo Picasso was born in Spain in 1881. By the time he was 16 he had established himself as an independent artist. After a period in France, where he painted much and sold very little, he returned for a time to Spain and so began his blue period, so called because his paintings were done almost entirely in various shades of blue. Then followed his rose or pink period and in the 1920's and 1930's he devoted himself to modern forms, Cubism, and sometimes surrealism and symbolism and thereby his reputation became firmly established. He died in 1973 worth in excess of $600 million.

ISSUE 6, NOVEMBER 1980

It's been the politicians month this month. Local body elections whipped up a bit more interest this time around with added contention over the harbour board issue. Paul Mitchell, professional but unpopular, scraped back in by a whisker clearly shaved by a double edged razor. On the national scene Prime Minister Muldoon suffered public rejection from quarters within his own party which brings us to the accolades we must bestow on the makers of the home grown movie screened in town. For those who didn't see it, it concerned the brutal murder of the New Zealand economy, the body of which was found battered to death downstream from a new hydro dam on the Clutha river. The movie 'Beyond Reasonable Debt' started with the attempts of the public to attach blame to the initial suspect Bill Rolling-stoppage but shifted soon to a simple country boy, Rob Muddling. Muddling was found guilty several times and although since pardoned we are all still utterly confused about the death of the economy and are still utterly confused about the motive

Welcome to this month's issue. We are delighted to present photos from the Bride of the Year and thank John Souter for our cover photo of Karen Watson

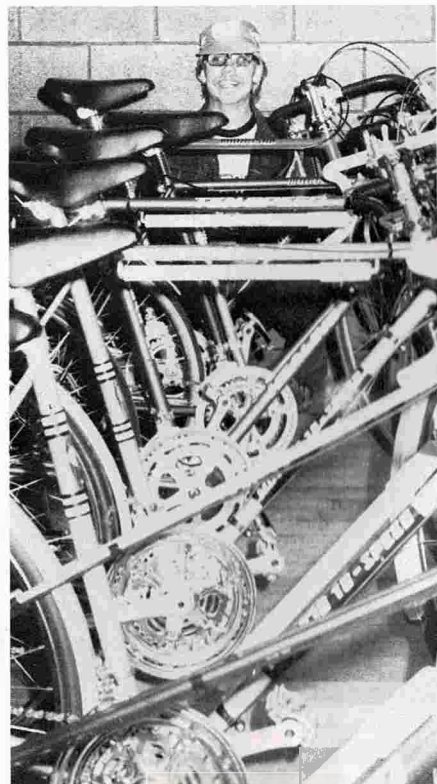

Thanks also to all the people contacting us and asking us along to their functions. We invite all of you to also submit photographs for printing. The photos must be clear and with negatives if possible and be of general public appeal. We have new offices above the new Fotoshop next to Bernina in the Avenue and our phone number is 57167. All enquiries to this number please. We also welcome enquiries from keen photographers to cover assignments for us. This work is paid and would be on a required basis.

ABOVE : While sea scouts performed guard duty for the weekend Paul and Roger Bellis, Richard Marsh and Nicholas Waites were in charge of crowd control. The weather wasn't the best but the large turnout saw displays ranging through business exhibits to saving forest and whale displays.

In October the Moutoa Lions Club and the Wanganui Vintage Car Club brought the Outdoor Life indoors for another big display at the stadium. ABOVE : Hayden Cairncross waits patiently next to a dummy that will never give him a turn. RIGHT : Alec Ward (boat owner) with Ben Miller, Rob Roy and Peter Whittleston. ABOVE : The City Council sworn in for another term of office, back row, Messrs Copeland, McCaul, Hood, Parnell, Bassett, Williams, Richardson. Seated, Messrs Calman, Gilmour, Bell, Hatrick (Mayor), Armstrong, Perrett and Griffith. The year, 1901. BELOW : Taupo Quay on the Nixon St corner (Trafalgar Place, C. 1860's. The buildings at left were Finnemore's bonded stores, then Hoskin the Bootmaker and H. Revell, baker, confectioner, grocer. In the foreground are the metal formers used for casting the piles for the old town bridge. The ghosted person on the footpath at left and again talking in front of the fence is the same person who moved and stopped while the plate was being exposed.

MUSEUM ARCHIVES

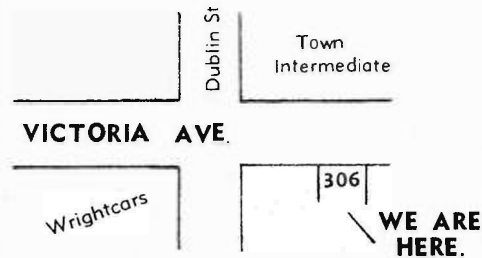

A successful brewery in Wanganui for 35 years, formerly owned by J. Binnie, was sold to John George Swan in 1900. His father George Henry Swan, a former Mayor of Napier, joined him in business two years later. This photograph shows the Swan Brewery building in lower St Hill Street. This was next door to the present Criterion Hotel. Their malt-house can be seen in the photograph. This was in Wilson Street. BELOW: Staff and owners C. 1905.

As we have featured weddings in this issue it seems only fair to print a picture from the male side of things. Here a young man celebrates the transition from boyhood to manhood in an age old N.Z. tradition. At Mike Kenworthy's kitchen tea were Steve Saunders and Graham Moore anxious to fill their stomachs with beer in the shortest possible time. Brent O'Reagen offers restrained encouragement and Tony Clarke wonders whether to throw up under or over the table.

High spirits and high fashion. With summer now upon us Kim Thompson gave us the chance to see what was available for feminine wardrobes in this season. The Central Kindergarten benefitted from the supper evening at the Riverina. With a late licence and disco a capacity crowd enjoyed the girls' summer preview with styles ranging from swimwear and daywear to evening wear with a few wild creations thrown in. From left, Pam Berridge, Deila Thomas, Chris McGregor, Kim Thompson, Annette Maine, Debbie Alward, Rose Whibley, Linda Fusic, Wendy March and Jo-anne Carlyon.
